

21. Limitation of linear programming:

- * For large problems the computational difficulties are enormous.
- * It may yield fractional value answers to decision variables
- * It is applicable to only static situation
- * Linear programming deals with the problems with single objective.

s@lky